Dear Catherine

I just wanted to write formally to thank you for all of your help and support since my appointment at the school. Recruitment at any school is a difficult job, but for a new Headteacher it is one of the most crucial elements as securing a team of one's own is fundamental for developing the school's vision. This is even more pertinent when the school has the challenges to surmount which Arrow Vale has.

More importantly the sheer volume of recruitment since my appointment has been huge and your tenacity and dedication are testament to your professional approach. Furthermore, it is the enthusiastic manner with which you conduct yourself and consistently arrive at the school with a smile and an encouraging word for the candidates and promoting the school so positively that has helped secured such quality candidates.

I look forward to continuing this professional relationship in the new term and, as the need arises, securing further high calibre staff. However, I would like to finally thank you for helping me secure the overstaffing which was part of my original vision for the school upon my appointment. To some this was an overambitious target, but thanks to you and your colleagues it has become a reality.

Yours sincerely

Mark Creasy
Headteacher
