

A unique organisation offering you a unique opportunity

Chief Executive

Liverpool • c.£70,000 + Benefits

The Roy Castle Lung Cancer Foundation is the UK's only charity dedicated to lung cancer. It specialises in research into the early detection of lung cancer, patient support and tobacco control. The Foundation has achieved international acclaim for its work and has grown substantially to employ 100 staff.

Mike Unger, the current Chief Executive, is retiring this year and the board seeks to appoint an outstanding business leader able to develop and execute the Foundation's five year business plan. The person must also:

- Identify and capitalise on market opportunities to grow its programmes.
- Develop a strong team-based approach to all business activities including its retail shops.
- Represent the organisation externally on national strategic working parties and through the media.

To be effective and successful, you will clearly demonstrate:

- Inspiring, strategic leadership qualities.
- Outstanding and charismatic interpersonal, relationship management skills, able to credibly represent the organisation at a national level.
- The ability to turn ideas and plans into deliverable projects and actions to deliver their mission.
- An approach that develops a trusting relationships with the board.

Having operated at board level or equivalent, you will be seeking an opportunity to apply your skills. The board actively encourages interest from candidates offering relevant experience gained within either the private or not for profit sectors.
